Prince Bismarck. A PEN PICTURE OF THE GREAT STATESMAN.

A writer in Blackwood's Magazine thus describes Prince Bismarck : "He is a powerful man. That is what strikes at once every one who sees him for the first time. He is very tall and of enormous weight, but not well proportioned—the large round head, the massive neck, the broad shoulders, and the vigoburden he has had to bear has been unusually heavy; but though his step has become slow and down even on those who are as tall as himselfand his figure is still erect. has made his features known to all. It is a strange face, which would attract attention anyworld. It is a face never to be forgotten-by no means a handsome, but still less an ugly one. It was remarkably bright, full of humor, of expression of unflinching energy and daring. "The bald round forhead-an object of admiration for the phrenologist-is of quite extraordinary dimensions; the large prominent blue eyes, seem as if they could look into the sun without blinking. They are not quick-they wander slowly from one object to another; but when uneasy; and all, even Bismarck's equals or superiors, are made aware that they are in the presence of a man with whom it would be wise to play fair, as he would probably discover the subtlest trick. His thick, well-set eyebrows are singularly long and shaggy, and they add not a little to the stern, and, at times, somewhat fierce expression of his countenance. The nose is of ordinary size-not as long, perhaps, as might be expected from the rest of the face; the chin is large and massive. " Prince Bismarck has said of himself that he indeed, many curious enemies in various parts of the world; in his own country, to begin with, among the Particularists, the Catholics and the France. "He is no longer young; he fully realizes the fact that the best part of his life is gone, that his and intimate friends-he has, besides his family, Mooltan, and a thousand go to Quetta. "After all, Otto von Bismarck, a child of the Marches, where his family has been known since the thirteenth century, is a thoroughbred German. Though one of the most matter-of-fact men the world has ever known, he carries within his breast a hidden vein of deep feeling; and though that feeling is not certainly of the kind which gives birth to morbid sentimentality, and it is difficult to believe that young Bismarck ever addressed his complainings to the moon, still it enables him to feel keenly all that a sensitive heart has to endure during a passage through

King of the Turf.

THE HISTORY OF RARUS, THE HORSE THAT MADE THE THREE FASTEST HEATS ON RECORD.

Rarus, the horse which eclipsed all previous feats in trotting by a record of 2.134, at Buffalo, and three successive heats of 2.15, 2.134, and 2.131, at Charter Oak Park, Hartford, is now in his eleventh year, and is the property of R. B. Conkling, an old resident of Greenport, Long Rarus is a bay horse, about 16 hands high. The horse possesses a long stride, easy, open gait, and is what might be styled a natural trotter. Rarus was born a trotter, as was Dexter, and no trouble was experienced in training. Seldom or never does he break, but moves around the track with the regularity of clock work. In the case of trotters descended from good blooded and well trained parents, even while in the pasture, field colts are more inclined to trot than gallop, but Rarus' ancestors, at least on the father's side, were not trained trotters. In his book entitled 'The Trotting Horse in America," the late Hiram Woodruff made the statement that the natural gait of the horse was to trot, but many prominent horsemen deny that such is the case, while others, equally prominent, pin their faith to the statement made by old Hiram. Be that as it may, Rarus trotted by the side of his dam when in the pasture field, at least so say those who have been acquainted with the animal almost from the day of his birth. Rarus' progenitor, before he was purchased by Mr. Conkling, performed the ignoble duty of drawing a fish cart for a Fulton market fish dealer. The sum paid for the stallion was some $200, and Mr. Conkling sent the horse to his stock farm at Greenport. All sporting men, as is natural, be-lieve that blood will tell, but the case of Rarus is a glaring exception to the rule. George Wilkes, of Wilkes' Spirit of the Times, and Mr. Conkling, have used every endeavor to trace the pedigree of the stallion, but instead of discovering that once he was a trotter, find that he is of ignoble stock, and his occupation through life was that of propelling divers butcher carts for different owners.

Rarus first appeared on the turf at the Suffolk county fair, held in Riverhead seven years ago this coming fall. There he was entered for the tating power: ' four year old stakes," the prize being a purse of $50. On this occasion F. W. Mead drove the trotter, and Mead is called by his turf friends the boy who taught Rarus his steps. In the race at Riverhead three heats were trotted, all of them being won by Rarus. The winner's best time was 2.424. After his performance at Riverhead the colt Rarus did not appear again on the turf that year, his next appearance being at Rernells-

It and occupy his territory, but the special signifihas now become serious-almost solemn-with an | cance of his hostile attitude lies in this fact, that hitherto in considering the possibility of a Russian invasion of India we have been accustomed to look upon Afghanistan as an all but invincible barrier between English territory and Russian aggression, whereas now for military purposes that barrier has ceased to exist. The Russians having the Ameer as an eager ally, the interval of 500 they rest on a human countenance, they become so intensely inquiring, that many people, when they have to undergo this searching look, feel miles is practically eliminated, and the Russian military power becomes at once coterminous with the British power, and an easy avenue is straightway opened for the former to British India, which can be further improved by Russian intrigue and Russian money. In addition to the above, the following telegrams give later and more concise particulars as to the present position of affairs in that direction. It certainly looks as if trouble is brewing :

A Perpetual Almanac.

In the following table the row of letters under the word "years" contains the Dominical letter for every year from 1871 to 1910. The Dominical letter for 1878 is, as you will see, F. The rule for working the table is :- " Under the word Years find the year, above which is the | Choice Ales, Wines, Liquors, Cigars, &c | Dominical letter for that year. Then against the month in the other column find the same letter over which are placed the days of the month for every Sunday in that month. Each blank space shows the year following to be Leap Year. In every Leap Year, for January and February use the letter above the blank space before that year; and for the other months use the letter belonging to the respective year. The year 1900 will not be a Leap Year." Thus if you want to find out the day of the week on which any date falls in January or October next year, you take F, the Dominical letter, then find the same letter in the row opposite "January, October," and over it you will see the figures 6. 13, 20, 27, which are dates of all the Sundays in January. So on for the other months :

REMEDY FOR SEA-SICKNESS .- Dr. Edard has invented a cure for sea-sickness. It is an electromagnetic belt, which has been proved, in the presence of a number of distinguished persons and on the irrefutable testimony of several others who have experienced its effects, to effectually cure and prevent sea-sickness. The belt is made of silken tissue, stitched and disposed so as to form parallel ribs. These ribs are filled with Titanic iron powder, which is naturally magnetic. The belt measures at the widest end (which is the positive pole) fifteen centimetres (six inches) and at the narrowest end (the negative pole) nine centimetres (three and a half inches.) From end to end it is divided by a kind of rib, which creates a constant electro-magnetic current; the other small ribs, which are parallel to each other, of unequal lengths, owing to the varying width of the belt, and over which they extend for its full length, run obliquely to the central rib, into which they throw their currents, thus giving it greater power. The result of this disposition is that the magnetic powder is equally distributed over the surface of the belt, insuring the closest and largest possible contact with the body, which is an essential condition of the cure. When the belt is on, the body is in a true electric bath, and it is the magnetic network thus formed and applied which causes the action of the apparatus to be exercised upon the muscles of the diaphragm, which by this action, is kept in its normal state, free from those movements that create the derangement of the stomach and produce sea-sickness.

A man in Portland, Maine, the other day was asked by a member of the greenback party, "You start a bank and issue $100,000 in bills and keep on hand only $10,000 in coin to redeem your bills; can you call that redemption?" He replied, "There are over 40,000 people in Portland, all of whom will need coffins some time; but we have no need of 40,000 coffins constantly

CORTLAND WAGON MANUFACTURING COMPANY!

O'N receipt of a letter from the Cortland Manufacturing Company a few months since, in which they offered us the agency of their factory for the Kingdom, we wrote them, that there was a prejudice here against Imported Carringes, as the larger portion of those brought into this country, were MADE TO SELL, and proved to be expensive inxuries That we did not CARE TO handle such goods, and unless they would build vehicles of the HEST MATERIAL and GUARANTEE them to be in every respect FIRST CLASS CARRIAGES, we shoul feel obliged to decline.

In reply they write as follows: "We have full confidence in the durability of our work and to adaptation to any climate, our Wagons are in use in every part of this country from the Pacific to the Adantic, over a range of servitory to which is comprised the extremes of heat and cold, dryness and muisture, and an experience of over ten years has demonstrated their perfect ability to resist the ravages of the MOST TRYING CLIMATE. In their construction we use only the HEST and most approved material, such as years of study, research and application have shown to be best fitted to combine lightness with strength, and elegance with comfort. We are SURE when they have been tested by actual use in your country, the prejudice you speak of as existing against Wagons of foreign make, will so far as THEY are concerned entirely disappear. We fully warrant all our goods to you, and you may look to us for compensation in case of the failure of the wagons to come up to our representations."
